

Becky loves banking technology.
She just loves her customers more.

BECKY HAS BEEN A FAIRHOPE BANKER FOR 33 YEARS. "It's what I've always done," she says.

While megabanks had begun placing computers and the internet as a barrier between bankers and their customers, Becky finds First National Bank uses banking technology to allow more of what she likes most: working with people face-to-face.

In short, Becky doesn't look at a computer monitor to see if she's doing a good job. She gets that answer from the look on her customers' faces.
